

UNRULY JUVENILE REFERRAL

---

An unruly child is defined as any child who does not submit to the reasonable control of the child's parents, teachers, guardian, or custodian, by reason of being wayward or habitually disobedient; and any child who behaves in a manner as to injure or endanger the child's own health or morals or the health or morals of others.

You may not need to complete this form if:

- Your child is currently involved with the juvenile court system or on probation.
- Your child is currently involved with Cuyahoga County Child & Family Services.
- Your child is currently involved in counseling or with a social service agency.

You can directly contact that agency to report the unruly behavior.

UNRULY REFERRAL PROCESS

Completing an Unruly Juvenile Referral means you are filing a charge against your child.

If your child has broken or damaged property this offense is Criminal Damage, not Unruly. If your child has pushed, hit, attacked or threatened a family member this offense is Domestic Violence, not Unruly. If the offense is criminal in nature, a police officer must file the report.

This Unruly Juvenile Referral will be forwarded to Cuyahoga County Juvenile Court for determination of what action will be taken. You will be contacted by Juvenile Court Intake or the Juvenile Diversion Administrator.

If the Diversion Program is the option, you and your child will be required to attend a diversion hearing where a cost may be involved.

Diversion Program sanctions imposed will most likely include community service for the child; and family counseling for you and your child, but other sanctions are also possible.

Although you have filed a charge, you are still responsible for the behavior and actions of your child. Filing this Unruly Juvenile Referral does not release you from your parental responsibilities.
