- The Medicine Cabinet or Candy Box? display can be used to teach children, parents, and other caregivers about medicine safety.
- The medicines represented here are just a sampling of the prescription drugs, nonprescription drugs, and supplements that might be mistaken for candy and swallowed.
- Even if you can distinguish a medicine from a candy by color or shape, a child may not be able to make that distinction.
- Keep all medicines and supplements in childproof bottles and in locked cabinets out of the reach and sight of children.
