The gathering quickly became disorderly and began to spread into surrounding areas of the city. Officers issued multiple lawful orders for the crowd to disperse; however, many individuals refused to comply. Due to the escalating situation and continued noncompliance, officers deployed less-lethal pepperball rounds to disperse the crowd and restore order. The deployment was effective and the area was subsequently cleared. No arrests were made at that time, as officers prioritized restoring order and responding to several other pending calls for service throughout the city.
